At the UMCOR Sager Brown Depot each year, health through agroforestry in rural Canada through the young adult mission programs provides opportunities to young people who are poor, abused, and scapegoated, and 7,000 plus people who are poor and displaced, in rural and urban poor communities throughout the United States.

The Advance, an official program of The United Methodist Church, is in 18 countries and has 1000 partners. The Advance focuses on holistic community development, with a particular emphasis on community transformation through microfinance. The Advance is located in countries such as Bangladesh, Nepal, and Kenya. The Advance is also involved in humanitarian relief efforts, especially in response to natural disasters and conflict situations. The Advance partners with local churches, government agencies, and international organizations to provide support to communities affected by poverty, conflict, and natural disasters. The Advance promotes sustainable development and economic empowerment through microfinance, job creation, and community development projects. The Advance is committed to long-term sustainable solutions and partnerships to address the root causes of poverty and inequality.